Prior (Dec-26):$406.00

ETN's 1Q print was mixed, with a beat on sales and orders, but a miss on margins at EA, with guidance inched up. The highlight remains orders, including 60% growth at EA, with data center the key driver, up 240% in the quarter, resulting in record EA backlog. With the strong orders/backlog and the addition of Boyd, DC is now expected to be 25-30% of sales this year, rising to 35% in '27 when the Mobility segment is spun. On the negative side, EA margins were weak on a combination of price/cost timing and capacity-related ramp costs, growing pains as the demand side continues to strengthen, though management reaffirmed the positive 2H trajectory/exit rate. Additionally, with Boyd incorporated into guidance it's an 8c EPS headwind this year, contributing to the lower than expected guide in 2Q, though the annual was raised 5c at the low end supported by the 1Q operating upside. In the end, we come away with no change to our '26 estimates, but our '27 number goes up 5% to reflect the stronger DC orders/backlog and Boyd accretion, partly offset by lower EA margins. Reflecting the higher '27 estimates and also now assuming a 20% premium to the sector (vs 15% prior) given expectations for improving earnings momentum next year, our Dec-2026 price target increases to $445 (from $406 prior). We remain OW.

- 1Q beat on sales. The quarter was a beat on sales, which grew 10% organically (vs JPMe 6.5%), led by Electrical, with FX (+3% vs JPMe +2.3%) and acquisitions (+4% vs JPMe +3.1%) also contributing to the upside, while margins were down 120bps at 22.7% (JPMe 22.4%). The headline EPS of $2.81 (vs Street $2.75) included an ~18c beat on segment profits, partly offset by below the line items. Adjusting for a gain in Aero (6c), Boyd profits (5c, not included in prior guidance), and incremental FX benefits (1c), the core beat was closer to the headline ~6c for the quarter. Looking across segments, Electrical Americas saw 14% organic sales growth (JPMe 10%), with operating margins of 25.6% (JPMe 27.2%), resulting in a 3% miss on EA profits, more than offset by beats elsewhere. Data center sales grew 50%, driving most of the growth, while C&I, MOEM, and to a lesser extent residential also saw growth. Utility and industrial were both down y/y, reflecting project comps. Electrical Global saw 9% organic growth (JPMe +4%) driven by data center, residential and MEOM, partly offset by industrial end markets, while FX was a 6% tailwind (JPMe 5%), and acquisitions added 6% (JPMe 0%), with margins of 19.2% (JPMe 18.3%). Aerospace saw 9% organic growth (JPMe +9%) due to strength in military aftermarket, commercial OEM, and commercial aftermarket, with acquisitions adding 5% (JPMe 5%), a 2% tailwind from FX (JPMe 3%), and margins of 26.7% (JPMe 22.9%), helped by the gain (a 280bps impact). Lastly, Mobility declined -6% organically (JPMe -5%), due to weakness in the North American region driven by the exit of a low-margin light vehicle business, partially offset by strength in the European region. This was partly offset by +4% from FX (JPMe 2%), with margins of 11.7% (JPMe 9%). FCF was solid at $314mm (vs $91mm in 1Q25).
- EA margins miss, but 2H outlook remains constructive. Margins for EA

Summary Investment Thesis and Valuation

Investment Thesis

Eaton has graduated from machinery to multi-industrial, and now the key is if it can become more of an end-market leverage play. We like the "Electrical" theme, with outsized growth in store for a good chunk of the portfolio on the back of related end-market activity, including Aerospace. There is more to the story, however – an operational transformation for which management has earned a good degree of credibility, and a debate that asks whether ETN is now a "high-quality" diversified, key to sustaining the recent multiple expansion, which already reflects a departure from its machinery past.

Valuation

On our 2027 EPS estimate, ETN shares now trade at ~25.4x, a ~20% premium to the group. Our Dec 2026 price target of $445 is based on a ~27.6x multiple on our 2027E EPS, a ~20% premium to the implied group target multiple of ~23x, due to higher organic growth characteristics. Our group target multiple of ~23x was set to be at a slight premium to the S&P 500 NTM multiple vs historical average premium of 5-10%.

came in 140bps below expectations, and down 440bps y/y at 25.6%. Management attributed the miss to several factors. First, it saw 480bps of inflation headwinds y/y, only partly offset by price. Second, it saw additional capacity ramp-related costs, driven by the higher than expected demand/orders, and as per raising of the FY organic guide to 13% (from 10% prior). They saw 100bps of investment headwind in the quarter, and continue to see a similar amount for all of ‘26. As a reminder, they are investing over $1 B to strategically expand capacity. The factory expansion is progressing as planned, with half of the 24 facilities done, six more to come online by the end of the year, and the other six beyond ‘27, but they’ve never had to add capacity at this type of scale. Third, they saw some weather disruptions in late-Jan/early-Feb, which resulted in additional costs to serve customers, with results improving in March/April. 1Q is still expected to be the low point on margins for the year, with 2Q expected up 150bps q/q, 3Q just below 30%, and 4Q moving to the low-30s, and management reaffirmed its commitment to meet or exceed its target of 32% by 2030. The margin uptick in 2H is contingent on price/cost catchup (additional pricing put through on April 1st), improving manufacturing efficiencies, and higher volumes, with 2Q sales seen at ~$3.8 B, up $200mm q/q, and 2H growing to $3.9-4 B per quarter.

- Strong orders drive record backlog. Rolling 12-month orders were up in all businesses, including 42% in Electrical Americas (vs 16% in 4Q), a 1.2x B2B, and 13% orders growth in Electrical Global and Aerospace. In EA, orders grew over 60% in the quarter to ~$4.8 B, with backlog jumping to $14.5 B (from $13.25 B in 4Q). The negotiations pipeline was up 81% y/y, supporting conversion of orders into backlog. Megaprojects saw another strong quarter, with announcements up 29% on top of 36% in FY25, a 65% 2-year stack. The backlog of megaprojects is now $3.3 trillion, up 31% y/y. Additionally, they saw an uptick on starts in 1Q, at $54 B, more than double last year. In EG. backlog grew 73% y/y to $3.2 B (vs $2 B in 4Q) but now includes ~$900mm from Boyd, adjusting for which the backlog still grew 20% organically y/y and up 10% q/q. This means total Electrical orders were ~$6.8 B, above the $6.4-6.5 B in 4Q, showing continued strong visibility on growth as per the 3% organic guide raise for Electrical. On short-cycle businesses, growth improved into the HSD range from MSD in 4Q, including some recovery in resi, growth in MOEM and distributed IT.
- DC outlook remains strong, now 25-30% of sales on pro-forma basis. Demand is growing faster than expected (DC orders up 240% in 1Q, vs 200% in 4Q), and management now estimates 32 GW of total data center capacity under-construction in the US, of which 70% is AI. Total data center backlog has grown to 228 GW, or 12 years of backlog at 2025 build rates, up from the 11 years in the last update. They highlighted several innovations and acquisitions that have expanded their position in these markets, including Fibrebond (modular power enclosures), Resilient Power (solid state transformer tech), and now Boyd (liquid cooling), which is expected to see $1.7 B of sales this year (up from $1.1 B in ‘25), of which $1.4 B will be reported by ETN (closed in early-March). Management noted that Boyd started the year strong, with sales more than doubling in 1Q and backlog doubling over the last six months. It reiterated that cold plate technology (60% of Boyd sales) is strategic when it comes to customer centricity and co-development, not a commodity product, with other recent acquisitions in the space a validation of its strategy. On the power side, they remain well positioned to support the move from AC to DC architectures (800 VDC), with orders expected in 2H for shipments starting in late-’27 and into ‘28. Lastly, they’re investing in modular/pre-fab, highlighting the Eaton Beam Rubin DSX platform in collaboration with NVDA, which develops a complete modularized implementation of AI factory infrastructure, spanning grid connection, power distribution, advanced cooling and structural architectures engineered for higher-speed, efficiency and resilience. DC was 21% of sales in ‘25, but with the market growth, strong orders, and acquisitions, we see it increasing to 27% of sales in ‘26 and 32% in ‘27.

- Guidance tweaked up. ETN now forecasts 2026 EPS at $13.05-13.50 (vs $13.00-13.50 prior), with organic sales growth expected to be +9-11% (vs +7-9% prior), FX at $185mm (vs flat prior), and operating margins at 24.1-24.5% (vs 24.6-25% prior). There were no changes made to end market growth assumptions, with DC still leading the way. Operating CF and FCF continue to be guided to $5.0-5.4 B and $3.9-4.3 B, with capex now $1150mm (vs $1100 prior). We provide the segment level breakdown in guidance below. Below the line, the company expects corporate/other expenses of $1450mm (vs prior $1130), of which $690mm of interest, $775mm of corporate, and $15mm of pension income, while tax rate is still seen at 17.5-18.5%. For 2Q, the company expects organic growth of 9-11% with segment operating margins of 22.6-23% (vs 23.9% in 2Q25), $400mm of corporate/other expenses, tax rate at 17.5-18.5%, and EPS of $3.00-3.10. On acquisitions, Ultra PCS is expected to add $60mm to Aerospace sales, with Boyd to add $360mm to EG.

- Estimate changes - maintaining '26, raising '27 on strong DC orders, Boyd accretion. We update our model following 1Q results. Our EPS estimate for 2026 remains at $13.40, while for 2027 we increase our estimate to $16.15 (from $15.35 prior). The key driver of the increase to 2027 comes from organic growth at EA and the additional of Boyd to EG, which supports higher sales/profits and better organic growth there. Overall, we now see 10.8%/10.9% organic growth for '26/'27 (vs 9.0%/8.4% prior), partly offset by lower margins, now at 24.2%/25.1% (vs 24.9%/25.4% previously). By segment in '26, we expect EA to grow 14.5% organic (vs 11% prior), EG to grow 8.5% organic (vs 5.5% prior), Aerospace to grow 9.5% organic (vs 9% prior), and Mobility to grow 2% organic (vs 6% prior). We forecast EA segment margins at 28.8% (vs 30.1% prior), EG at 20% (vs 19.7% prior), Aerospace at 24.7% (vs 24.1% prior), and Mobility at 13% (vs 14% prior). We see revenue from Boyd of $1.4 B with 22% margins, resulting in $305mm of profit contribution (vs zero prior), entirely offset by higher interest/other expenses ($345mm above our prior estimate), however accretion ramps in '27 with continued strong sales growth, higher margins, and cash going to debt reduction. For 2Q, we model EPS of $3.10 (vs guide $3.00-$3.10), with ~10% organic growth (vs 9-11% guide) and operating margins of 22.8% (vs guide of 22.6-23%).

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

Eaton (Overweight; Price Target: $445.00)

Investment Thesis

Eaton has graduated from machinery to multi-industrial, and now the key is if it can become more of an end-market leverage play. We like the "Electrical" theme, with outsized growth in store for a good chunk of the portfolio on the back of related end-market activity, including Aerospace. Valuation

Increase Dec 2026 PT to $445 (from $406 prior). On our 2027 EPS estimate, ETN shares now trade at ~25.4x, a ~20% premium to the group. Our Dec 2026 price target of $445 is based on a ~27.6x multiple on our 2027E EPS, a ~20% premium to the implied group target multiple of ~23x, due to higher organic growth characteristics. Our group target multiple of ~23x was set to be at a slight premium to the S&P 500 NTM multiple vs historical average premium of 5-10%.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

Downside risks include (1) weaker than expected orders as backlog normalizes, (2) recessionary risk as the business here is not defensive, and (3) growth does not come through in Electrical from announced mega projects and data center verticals.

J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
