Questions on the NTM Americas margin path are both fair and underpinned our caution into Q1 EPS following the strong YTD performance (link), however, all the near-term margin focus (capacity adds, cost inflation recovery) is clouding the underlying portfolio transformation – this is the ETN opportunity, offering both positive revision + multiple expansion opportunity into 2027 and why we are raising our PT to $500. While 2026 Americas margins are difficult to bridge and the 2H ramp still looks difficult on the lowered ~29% guide (prior ~30%), we think this is incorrectly being taken as EPS revision risk – we model Americas 2026 margins below the ~29% guide, however, see positive offsets via Americas topline and Boyd upside (discussed below). Should the market come to the same conclusion, it will allow focus to shift from 2026 uncertainty to 2027 opportunity where ETN portfolio transformation offers both EPS upside on conservative Boyd modeling but also multiple expansion as Liquid Cooling exposure (Boyd) swaps in for Mobility (Q1'27 spin) and unlocks a step higher in the organic algo. And as the market realizes this is a sustained LDD organic growth profile, we see a return to 30x+ EPS

Americas Organic Upside: While we see downside risk to Americas 2026 margins, we see organic growth upside as an offset to protect EPS. Americas did a 14% organic in Q1 and is guided for 12-14% organic for FY'26 on largely unchanged rest of year comps. We think this is a conservative mark – Q1 orders came in +60% (TTM +42%), ETN is pushing incremental price in response to commodity inflation (our sense is 2-3%, realized in 2H) and capacity adds unlocking better volumes (ie Q1'26). If ETN Americas were to generate a 16.5% FY'26 organic (vs ~13% guide), the segment could achieve guided $4.4B OP on 28% margins (vs 29% guide). Longer-term, Americas is guided for 11% organic in F'27 and 9.5% organic in F'28 – bogeys that screen for upside given cont'd order momentum and exposure to secular mega-trends (Reshoring, AI Data Center, Utility).

Exhibit 3: While we understand concerns on ETN Americas margins, we think any 2026 downside can be offset by firmer Americas organic growth which is modeled for deceleration off Q1 despite inflecting orders, incremental price on the horizon and capacity adds unlocking higher volumes

Source: Morgan Stanley Research, Company Reports, Visible Alpha

Boyd Thermal Acquisition Looking Better & Better: While the market has begun to agree with our call that the Boyd acquisition was both strategic and at an attractive price (Strategic Asset at Attractive Valuation), the impact on ETN fundamentals & what that means for valuation of the equity remains under-appreciated. In our Bull model, we forecast Boyd sustaining ~40% growth in F'27 - F'28 which would drive ~400 bps of upside for ETN Global organic vs Cons, equating to ~125 bps of upside for consolidated ETN. Combined with sustained Americas strength, our Bull math sees scope for ~13% organic in F'27 – F'28, well above Cons 8-9% and offering re-rating opportunity in addition to EPS upside. Boyd also screens for upside on margins – Electrical global is being modeled for a high 20% incremental margin, more reflective of legacy operations but not giving credit for Boyd margin accretion. Boyd is expected to do a low 20% op margin (vs Global ~19.5%) and note the business did a ~26% OM in Q1 (only three weeks). Our Bull model calls for HSD – LDD operating profit upside for Electrical Global in 2027-2028, almost entirely on Boyd – see Exhibit 4 for detailed modeling assumptions. Over the near-term, we also think Boyd offers upside – the business is guided for $360M of sales in Q2 which screens conservative relative to $475M /Q in 2H. Note this business did $92M of revenue in 19 days in Q1, which would translate to ~$440M if applied to 91 days in Q2. In addition, Electrical Global margins are being guided down Q/Q despite higher seasonal organic volumes and Boyd impact which should remain margin accretive.

Valuation: While ETN conversations have centered on margins over the last 6mo, the primary debate over the last 5yrs has been on the durability of organic growth – ETN was a GDP grower prior to 2020 but has since inflected to HSD organic and the market has debated the sustainability of that inflection. Being a HSD grower in US Industrials is rarified air – we always placed ETN firmly in this category and post portfolio transformation, we see scope for a LDD organic growth profile into 2027-28. Better yet, our work suggests 2027 Boyd EPS accretion can largely offset dilution from the Mobility Divestiture – a swap that adds 300+ bps to ETN organic on our math and one that also comes through margin accretive. The only other companies in our coverage that can credibly claim the same are VRT and perhaps TT – both of which trade over 30x EPS. As ETN works past transitory margin headwinds (capacity, price / cost lag on backlog timing), the debate will once again be on ETN organic growth and we doubt any investors will be seeing downside to HSD bogeys post portfolio transformation.

Exhibit 5: As we move to pro-forma valuation, we are raising our target multiple to ~31x (vs ~28x) as the portfolio transformation unlocks a stronger organic growth profile and mixes ETN into more attractive end markets

Changes to Estimates, Raising Price Target

Coming out of Q1'26, we raise our PT to $500 from $425 prior after updating estimates and marking-to-market our multiple. Our $500 PT is based on ~30.0x our blended 2027/28 EPS estimate of $16.60. The ~30.0x multiple, up from ~27.5x prior, still represents a mid-teens % premium to peers, as the peer group has rerated. It also represents a 40%+ premium to the S&P, in line with current levels and above historical averages, as we believe accelerating orders and organic growth and favorable portfolio action should support premium valuation. While near-term margins likely remain impacted by capacity ramp-up headwinds, we see ETN returning to LDD%+ organic growth, supported by accelerating orders, record backlog, and new capacity. Additionally, recently acquired Boyd Thermal and the pending spin of Mobility (target end of Q1'27) should prove accretive to growth and margins in the out years. We believe this, alongside improved operating leverage as new capacity ramps up, should drive rerating.

Estimates: We model Q2'26 EPS at $3.05 ($3.00-$3.10 guide) driven by 9.6% organic growth (9-11% guide) and 22.8% segment margin (22.6-23.0% guide). This contributes to our 2026 EPS forecast of $13.26 ($13.05-$13.50 guide) on 10.3% organic (9-11% guide) and 24.0% segment margin (24.1-24.5% guide). While we see organic accelerating to LDD in 2026, we expect incrementals to step back further to low-20s, dragged by capacity investments, under-utilization during ramp-up, and price/cost lag. We expect incrementals bounce back in 2027, though, returning to mid- to high- 30s % as ETN catches up on recent underperformance and gets volume leverage on new capacity. Elevated backlogs, durable pricing power, and a robust demand profile supported by secular tailwinds (Data Center, Reshoring) give us confidence in continued top-line growth, while the addition of Boyd thermal should prove accretive to organic growth and margins.

PRICE TARGET $500.00

PT applies a ~30.0x multiple to blended 2027/28 EPS of $16.60. The multiple represents a mid-teens % premium to peers and 40%+ premium to the S&P, in line with current levels, as a return to LDD organic growth, recovering operating leverage, and favorable portfolio transformation should support premium valuation.

BULL CASE

$575.00

~32.0x blended 2027/28 EPS of $18.05

We forecast sustained LDD growth through 2028 w/ Electrical Americas holding low-teens, Electrical Global ramping to LDD with Boyd tailwinds, and Aero averaging LDD. We model Mobility organic accelerating to MSD+ on market recovery and new model launches. We forecast mid- to high-30% incrementals in 2027/28, as capacity comes on line. Our ~32.0x multiple represents a low 20s % premium to peers, ahead of current levels, supported by re-accelerating organic growth and a ~20% EPS CAGR.

BASE CASE

~30.0x blended 2027/28 EPS of $16.60

We assume ETN returns to LDD organic in 2026/27, but below 2022/23 levels, benefitting added capacity and uplift from Boyd. We model continued LDD organic for Elec Americas, supported by megatrends and record backlog. We model Elec Global ramping to HSD, driven by Boyd tailwinds, and Aero easing to HSD. We model low 20s incrementals in 2026 before recovering to 30%+ as capacity comes online. Our ~30.0x multiple represents a 40%+ premium to the S&P, in line with current levels.

BEAR CASE

~24.5x blended 2027/28 EPS of $13.37

We model organic decelerating to MSD, assuming Americas decelerates sharply on project delays & backlog burn along and cont'd softness for Electrical Global on soft EU + APAC macro. With softer volumes & pricing power, we forecast incrementals remaining in the 20s through 2028 following the 35-40% average in 2023/24. Our ~24.5x multiple represents a mid teens % premium to the S&P, in line with recent lows and below the LT average high teens % premium, as organic deceleration drives derating.

OVERWEIGHT THESIS

- As the leading provider of Electrical Systems in the US, ETN offers the strongest & broadest set of secular drivers across US Industrials - including US Reshoring (favored name on theme), AI / Data Center build-out, Utility/Infrastructure & broad-based Electrification.
- ETN brings significant leverage to our call for an extended capex upcycle; we forecast a return to LDD% organic growth in 2026/27.
- ETN has grown EPS at a DD% CAGR over the last 4yrs and the debate now is all about durability - we are positive on key secular drivers to be multi-decade opportunities and on a micro level, ETN continues to build backlog & orders have returned to growth.

Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold, and sell but represent recommended relative weightings (see definitions below). To satisfy regulatory requirements, we correspond Overweight, our most positive stock rating, with a buy recommendation; we correspond Equal-weight and Not-Rated to hold and Underweight to sell recommendations, respectively.
