Buy: Progress and investment in AI continue

- ◆ We raise our AI spending assumption to reflect continuing investment
- ◆ Weixin Agent and building up skills ecosystem are among the progress seen in AI
- ◆ Maintain Buy, cut TP to HKD655 (from HKD720)

Investing for the future: Tencent continues to make progress in AI development, the most recent being rolling out beta testing of the Weixin agent and unveiling the latest HY3 model. We expect AI spending to continue to pick up into the Weixin agent launch and potentially further accelerate due to user adoption ramp up, and we raise our cost and capex assumptions. We cut FY26-28e net profit 6-19% although we are confident various efforts to drive better token consumption efficiency, such as model iteration and working closely with smartphone manufacturers to reroute certain requests to rely on local device inferencing, can help buffer potential inferencing costs. We also cut FY26-28e revenue marginally on more conservative domestic and overseas game estimates, on lower revenue from Honour of Kings World, Supercell's titles, and several legacy titles. We cut our TP to HKD655 from USD720, factoring in changes. At 14x FY26e PE, we think earnings cut risk is largely in the price. Tencent has been stepping up its pace of buyback to provide valuation support: maintain Buy.

AI developments highlight: 1) User experience is a focus: Weixin Agent (Xiao Wei) beta testing allows Tencent to obtain feedback from real world adoption to drive product improvement. 2) Building up skills ecosystem: It is collaborating with Mini Program developers and brand merchants to convert source code into skills with authorization or to support customization. Meituan, JD, Didi, Trip.com and Tongcheng are among those who can offer services on Weixin agent when it is launched.

3) Navigating computing resources limitations: Given the size of Weixin's user base, it is imperative to find a sustainable way of operating the agent cost effectively. Tencent addresses it via token efficiency optimization: HY3 outperforms similar-size models in this respect. Tencent is also working on automatic triaging of less complex tasks to edge devices for inferencing to save token consumption. It has announced partnerships with phone manufacturers like VIVO, OPPO, Huawei and Honor for AI agent collaboration with voice command. 4) WorkBuddy: According to Analysys, WorkBuddy had 8.85m PC visits (vs. market at 20m) in March 2026, 2.6x/3.7x above the #2/3 player in the AI-native office agent platform. Professional consumers are the key user group. As of 4 June 2026, WorkBuddy had achieved 80% next-day retention among active users and 88% next-day retention among paying users. 5) HY and WeLM (LLM by Weixin): HY team's next focus will be on models with higher parameter size and even better token efficiencies. Despite Weixin having its own independent AI team, it can still benefit from insights and breakthroughs made by HY.

2Q26 preview: Tencent reports 2Q results on 12 August. We expect revenue, GP, and non-IFRS OP to grow 10%/10%/7% y-o-y, respectively. Details page 9-10.

2Q26 preview

Tencent reports 2Q results on 12 August. We expect revenue, GP, and non-IFRS OP to grow 10%/10%/7% y-o-y, respectively. By segment (2Q y-o-y growth): 1) Domestic Games (+13%) benefits from the deferral of gross receipts from 1Q, which grew at teens %. 2) International Games (+6%) faces tough comps and has limited new launches this year and could see decline in 2H26. 3) Marketing Services (+18%) back by adtech upgrade and video account growth. 4) Fintech and Business Services (+9% yoy), driven by AI demand and favourable pricing for cloud, partially offset by softness in payment in a challenging macro. We expect higher AI COGS and opex to continue to weigh on margins.

Valuation and risks

Valuation and risks

		Valuation	Risks to our view
Tencent 700 HK	Current price:	Methodology: DCF Assumptions: WACC of 8.4% is based on a debt/debt-and-equity ratio of 21%, risk-free rate of 4.25%, mainland China market equity risk premium of 4.75%, beta of 1.21, tax rate of 25%, and cost of debt of 3.2%. Terminal growth rate of 3.5%. Our inputs remain unchanged. We derive a TP of HKD655 (from HKD720) on the back of our estimate changes. Our new TP implies 39.5% upside and we maintain our Buy rating. We see solid fundamentals in games and ads. RMB counter: For the RMB counter (80700 HK, RMB403.00), our TP of RMB589.00 (from RMB674.00) is converted from our H-share target price based on the HSBC fx team's RMB-HKD assumption of 1.17 (from 1.16) at end-2026e.	Downside risks: ◆ Inability to get monetisation approval for games ◆ Regulatory headwinds for games and internet finance ◆ A deeper macro slowdown that could affect advertisers' budgets ◆ Inappropriate advertising and video content ◆ Changes in user preferences in terms of entertainment formats or communications ◆ Overhang from major shareholders' reduction of stake over time ◆ Being included in lists of overseas regulators that can affect operations or even trading/ownership of the stock ◆ Higher-than-expected AI investment intensity and/or weaker monetisation/ROI could pressure margins and cash flow

Important disclosures

Equities: Stock ratings and basis for financial analysis

HSBC and its affiliates, including the issuer of this report ("HSBC") believes an investor's decision to buy or sell a stock should depend on individual circumstances such as the investor's existing holdings, risk tolerance and other considerations and that investors utilise various disciplines and investment horizons when making investment decisions. Ratings should not be used or relied on in isolation as investment advice. Different securities firms use a variety of ratings terms as well as different rating systems to describe their recommendations and therefore investors should carefully read the definitions of the ratings used in each research report. Further, investors should carefully read the entire research report and not infer its contents from the rating because research reports contain more complete information concerning the analysts' views and the basis for the rating.

From 23rd March 2015 HSBC has assigned ratings on the following basis:

The target price is based on the analyst's assessment of the stock's actual current value, although we expect it to take six to 12 months for the market price to reflect this. When the target price is more than 20% above the current share price, the stock will be classified as a Buy; when it is between 5% and 20% above the current share price, the stock may be classified as a Buy or a Hold; when it is between 5% below and 5% above the current share price, the stock will be classified as a Hold; when it is between 5% and 20% below the current share price, the stock may be classified as a Hold or a Reduce; and when it is more than 20% below the current share price, the stock will be classified as a Reduce.

Our ratings are re-calibrated against these bands at the time of any 'material change' (initiation or resumption of coverage, change in target price or estimates).

Upside/Downside is the percentage difference between the target price and the share price.

Prior to this date, HSBC's rating structure was applied on the following basis:

For each stock we set a required rate of return calculated from the cost of equity for that stock's domestic or, as appropriate, regional market established by our strategy team. The target price for a stock represented the value the analyst expected the stock to reach over our performance horizon. The performance horizon was 12 months. For a stock to be classified as Overweight, the potential return, which equals the percentage difference between the current share price and the target price, including the forecast dividend yield when indicated, had to exceed the required return by at least 5 percentage points over the succeeding 12 months (or 10 percentage points for a stock classified as Volatile*). For a stock to be classified as Underweight, the stock was expected to underperform its required return by at least 5 percentage points over the succeeding 12 months (or 10 percentage points for a stock classified as Volatile*). Stocks between these bands were classified as Neutral.

*A stock was classified as volatile if its historical volatility had exceeded 40%, if the stock had been listed for less than 12 months (unless it was in an industry or sector where volatility is low) or if the analyst expected significant volatility. However, stocks which we did not consider volatile may in fact also have behaved in such a way. Historical volatility was defined as the past month's average of the daily 365-day moving average volatilities. In order to avoid misleadingly frequent changes in rating, however, volatility had to move 2.5 percentage points past the 40% benchmark in either direction for a stock's status to change.

Rating distribution for long-term investment opportunities

As of 30 June 2026, the distribution of all independent ratings published by HSBC is as follows:

Buy	61%	(13% of these provided with Investment Banking Services in the past 12 months)
Hold	34%	(10% of these provided with Investment Banking Services in the past 12 months)
Sell	5%	(8% of these provided with Investment Banking Services in the past 12 months)

For the purposes of the distribution above the following mapping structure is used during the transition from the previous to current rating models: under our previous model, Overweight = Buy, Neutral = Hold and Underweight = Sell; under our current model Buy = Buy, Hold = Hold and Reduce = Sell. For rating definitions under both models, please see “Stock ratings and basis for financial analysis” above.

For the distribution of non-independent ratings published by HSBC, please see the disclosure page available at <http://www.hsbcnet.com/gbm/financial-regulation/investment-recommendations-disclosures>.
