China regional banks (CRBs) under our coverage will begin reporting 3Q26 results since October 20. Please see Table 1 for the full reporting schedule, Table 2 for a summary of our key estimates and Tables 5–11 for detailed line-by-line estimates for each bank. We expect average net profit growth across the covered CRBs to moderate to 7% y/y in 3Q26 from 8% y/y in 2Q. Average PPOP growth should remain steady at 9% y/y, with a slightly moderated trend in core earnings offset by a smaller drag from non-fee income. Asset quality and provisioning needs should remain the key drivers of earnings differentiation, with retail risk stabilizing at BoNB, BoNJ and CRCB, while tighter NPL recognition could weigh on BoSH. We see potential upside surprises at BoNB and CRCB, supported by BoNB's stronger-than-peers core earnings momentum and CRCB's improving profit growth trajectory. BoSH faces a larger downside earnings risk from elevated provisioning needs, although its higher dividend yield (5.5% in 2026E) could provide some downside support to the share price.

- 3Q NII growth is likely to remain solid despite a moderating momentum: For the CRBs under our coverage, we expect average NII growth of 11% y/y in 3Q, easing from 15% y/y in 2Q. We expect loan growth to moderate to 9% y/y (or 1% q/q) in 3Q, vs 10% y/y in 2Q, due to relatively weak demand and seasonality. Corporate lending should remain the main driver of loan expansion, while weak retail demand and continued reductions in higher-risk exposures could constrain retail growth. Among banks disclosing quarterly NIMs, we expect NIM to be broadly stable to slightly lower on a q/q basis, compared with the average 5bp q/q contraction in 2Q. The sharper 2Q NIM decline partly reflects weaker incremental support from deposit repricing, as most of the benefit was captured in 1Q itself. This drag on sequential NIM performance should ease in 3Q. Banks with stronger corporate franchises and regional demand, including BoNB, BoNJ and BoHZ, should continue to deliver above-peers loan and NII growth.

- Fee growth to moderate, but stronger franchise retains the edge: We expect average fee income growth of 9% y/y in 3Q26 for our covered CRBs, moderating from 17% in 2Q26. We observed a softening of investor sentiment for the equity market in 3Q26. A-share average daily turnover declined to Rmb2.3trn in 3Q, from Rmb2.9trn in 2Q (Figure 1). Meanwhile, new mutual fund issuance fell 37% y/y (Figure 2), suggesting weaker support for wealth-related fees. Regional banks' feedback suggests that wealth-related fees continue to grow on a y/y basis, although at a moderating pace. We expect BoNB to remain the best positioned to sustain above-peers fee growth, supported by its strong wealth management franchise.

- Non-fee income remains a swing factor despite stronger OCI buffers: Non-fee income mainly comprises trading income and investment disposal gains and losses. We expect the non-fee contraction to slightly narrow (-15% y/y in 3Q vs -17% y/y in 2Q), but continue despite the lower base in 3Q25, with any recovery partly dependent on banks' willingness to realize gains. The investment mix has shifted towards FVOCI assets (Table 3). For our coverage, the average FVPL investments allocation declined by 1.6ppt y/y to 7% of total assets in 1H26, which helped reduce the revenue sensitivity to a fair-value change. Meanwhile, the average FVOCI allocation increased by 1.3ppt y/y to 16% of total assets. OCI reserves also strengthened in 1H26, reaching ~8% of FY26E revenue on average, versus ~5% at end-2025 (Figure 3). However, we believe regional banks are taking a more cautious approach to investment disposals, preferring to build OCI reserves at this stage. Higher OCI buffers, therefore, provide greater flexibility in managing investment income over time, but do not necessarily translate into stronger near-term realized gains.

- Retail asset quality shows selective signs of stabilization: Our channel checks suggest a stabilizing of retail risk trends at selected banks, with BoNB, BoNJ and CRCB better positioned. In general, banks pointed out that personal business loans remain the main source of pressure. Underlying mortgage risk has eased, but reported mortgage NPL ratios may still rise as lengthy collateral disposal processes delay the resolution of existing NPLs. Consumer loan NPL formation remains broadly stable as banks continue to wind down online lending exposures.

- Potential upside surprise: We see the most potential upside at BoNB. We expect the bank to report 12% y/y growth in both 3Q revenue and profits. BoNB offers the strongest combination of resilient loan growth, leading fee income growth and stable asset quality, underpinning stronger earnings visibility. We also remain constructive on CRCB, where we expect a sequential improvement in profit growth on a y/y basis in 2026.

- Potential downside risk: BoSH faces downside earnings risk in 3Q. We expect BoSH's net profit to remain broadly flat y/y despite revenue likely growing 6% y/y, due to rising impairment pressure. The gap between Stage 3 loans and reported NPLs narrowed to around 60bps of total loans in 1H26 from 80bps at end-2025 (Figure 4). However, further tightening of NPL recognition and potential deterioration in property loans should keep provisioning pressure elevated. While we expect BoSH to deliver the weakest earnings growth among its covered peers, its high 2026E dividend yield at 5.5% (~80bps above the peer average) could provide some downside support to the share price.

- Key questions to focus on at the 3Q results: We would focus on (a) 4Q26 and 2027 NIM prospects as deposit repricing support fades; (b) the sustainability of wealth fees and the pace of investment gain realization; (c) retail NPL formation, disposals and the gap between Stage 3 loans and reported NPLs; and (d) capital and dividend payout commitments.

J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
