Porsche to reportedly reduce headcount by 4,000 - media report

According to Handelsblatt, Porsche could cut up to 4,000 more jobs (10% of its global workforce), following the headcount reductions already announced, with staff in management (below board level) and administration particularly affected. The report indicates that around 30% of capacity at the Weissach development centre is under review. The company has not commented specifically on the report, but referred to a comprehensive package to be presented by the end of July.

Our view:

The additional potential white-collar job cuts suggested by Handelsblatt would be consistent with our upgrade to Buy report, from earlier this month. We think the elements of a turnaround at Porsche are becoming increasingly visible, specifically in: (1) a better-fit product portfolio: missteps of the past (too strong a BEV focus) are being addressed; new (top-end) products with ICE/hybrid powertrains are lined up. (2) Better execution: New management is showing determination to clean up (non-core asset sales, leaner organisation) and focus on product quality. (3) Right-sizing: We think a leaner, 'new Porsche is likely to emerge after a period of less effective efficiency measures, with a right-sized organisation for ~250-280k annual volume (vs. ~350k targeted at the time of the IPO). For Q2, we see P911 as the best clean Q2 performer with 7% OPM incl. ~300bps realignment costs; more cost cutting could trigger an extra Q2 charge. For more details, see our sector preview: Q2 preview: OEMs in restructuring mode. We think the CMD on 7 October will likely bring it all together: By 2030, we expect Porsche to return to a 13% OP margin, resulting in €4.2 EPS (11x P/E) and €3.7bn FCF (9% yield).

EU tire investigation: conclusions potentially tomorrow

According to its website, the EC is likely to present the conclusions of its investigations into China PC tire imports for potential dumping practices by 7 July. The commission's website says, "Latest date to publish the imposition of definitive measures or the termination of the proceedings in the Official Journal of the European Union in the case of initial investigations. Measures will normally be imposed for a period of five years with the possibility to request a review of the measures at the earliest one year after imposition."

Our view: As we have written multiple times in the past, we believe investors/industry participants expectations are for a tariff of c30/40%. A few weeks ago, some press articles mentioned a range of 30-52%. Since the beginning of the year, UBS Evidence Lab data has shown Chinese tire imports into Europe have dropped by 60% in anticipation of the investigation conclusions. Meanwhile, the replacement market have been pretty strong (especially March/April). Therefore, we see some potential upside risk to volume growth in Q2. in Europe (also helped by pre-buy)

We also estimate the budget segment, which has historically been margin dilutive, could turn into a positive contributor. We estimate the exposure to more budget brands in Europe being between <10% (Pirelli) to c30% (Conti).

We think it is likely to take about one year for China tire makers to re-localise production outside China, in countries including Thailand and Vietnam. We note the process has already started: for the first time, in February 2026, the monthly flow of imports from other Asian countries into the EU exceeded the one from China. Meanwhile, we think it is increasingly likely there could be shortages in the budget segment but not before the end of the year since our industry checks suggest still elevated inventories.

We think Continental is best positioned to benefit should EU tariff be confirmed, followed by Michelin and Pirelli.

On Conti more specifically, it just announced the disposal of ContiTech, which we think could unlock €17-24/share of value (see our note). Comes Q2 earnings on 4 August, we think the company might decide to narrow the range in Tires towards 14-15% since H126 at or slightly above the high end of the FY26 guidance (see our preview).

June new car sales in Germany: +16% y/y for the month, +6% y/y for Q2

According to German authority KBA, last month's new car sales were +16% y/y (+2 selling days). For the full Q2 (offsetting some of the seasonality), the sales were +6% y/y.

By OEM, Stellantis sales were ~flat y/y, BMW was up +24% y/y, VW Group was +14% y/y (of which Porsche -4% and Audi +17% y/y) and Mercedes was +8% y/y, Renault was +26% y/y. Tesla was up +318% y/y on a low base, Chinese OEMs reached 5% combined market share for the second month consecutively (+128% y/y). BEVs showed strong growth with +78% y/y gains for a 28% share; xEV share reached 39%.

According to VDA, domestic order intake in June was up +23% y/y, with foreign orders down -10% y/y (-6% y/y total in June).

Germany	#units	% y/y	% YTD	% share
Total car sales	296,378	15.7%	5.8%	100.0%
BEV	84,057	78.2%	48.0%	28.4%
PHEV	32,212	25.8%	17.9%	10.9%
EV total	116,269	59.8%	37.2%	39.2%

Source: KBA

Our view: Another solid German print with ~6% growth on a selling day adjusted basis. Powertrain-wise, BEV sales enjoyed very strong growth with +78% y/y; pure ICE vehicles have contracted -12% y/y whereas hybrid sales were up +13% y/y. We expect the positive EV trend to continue, with fuel tax cuts in Germany have been phased out starting July.

OEM-wise, BMW recorded a strong June read, Tesla regained share, while VW performed broadly in line with the market whereas Stellantis underperformed. Chinese OEMs have also gained traction in Germany, with BYD benefiting mostly, but also Leapmotor has made its entrance getting c0.5% market share. As we have recently highlighted, COEMs gain share partly from European OEMs, but also from Japanese/ other OEMs; in June, Japanese OEMs contracted -9% y/y, losing 1.5% share.

On a Q2 basis, BMW had outperformed in Q2 (+9% y/y), Tesla made a comeback (+305% y/y), while Volkswagen underperformed (+2% y/y).

Earnings/Share price impact: Slight positive overall and specifically for BMW

Investors said considering buying part of Sinochem's stake in Pirelli

Reuters reports a number of Czech investors could be interested in buying part of the 34% Pirelli stake owned by Sinochem; noting they could be interested in buying 10-20% of Pirelli shares.

Per a company press release in mid-April, the Italian government approved a decree invoking its 'Golden Power', with the objective of protecting Pirelli's "cyber tyre" technology developed by Pirelli (a tire with a sensor that measures various information on tire condition, speed and road conditions). As a result, we note Sinochem will not be able to appoint more than three board members and will not be able to hold the positions of Chairman or CEO. The article states these rules apply as long as Sinochem's stake in Pirelli is >9.99%. Last week, Pirelli provided an update on the new board structure, nominating Marco Tronchetti Provera as Executive Chairman, as well as the new board members representing Sinochem.

It has also been reported that Camfin, Pirelli's second-largest shareholder with 26%, has scope to potentially increase its stake to 29.9% (see press article)

Our view: We make no attempt to assess the likelihood of a move such as that reported above, but note the potential outcomes mentioned by Reuters - e.g. Sinochem selling part of its stake to reach below 10% and Camfin increasing its stake to 29.9% - could enable Pirelli to remove the shareholder overhang, which in our view has been a key area of investor pushback.

Pirelli has an attractive equity story, in our view, mostly due to its deleveraging potential, which we think could drive strong earnings growth. We model >10% CAGR25-28E. Despite its cost of debt increasing from c2% in 2020 to c4.4% today (peak >5%), Pirelli has been able to contain its net interest expenses at c€200m, still representing c40% of its net income. The cost of debt has been declining each quarter during 2025 reaching 4.4% in Q425 (LTM). Pirelli delivered its leverage target at the end of 2025 and we think it could mark a turning point with Pirelli applying an even more attractive capital allocation strategy (likely to be detailed with the new industrial plan). We estimate Pirelli can sustain a dividend payout ratio of >50% and could start discussing share buybacks at some point when its shareholder structure has been addressed.

European Autos : "Q2 preview: OEMs in restructuring mode"

See our full report here

Weak China and Chinese OEMs growing in Europe are the big themes

Very low Q2 demand in China (~20% y/y) and rising market share of Chinese OEMs in Europe (~11% vs. 4% in Q2/25) will likely impact Q2 earnings. Demand in western markets held up well and the Middle East crisis had only minor impact, but global LVP ex-China was -1.1% y/y in Q2 due to growing Chinese exports. After BMW, we expect more risk of profit warnings from German OEMs on restructuring charges; we also see downside risk to underlying performance of mass OEMs in Europe.

OEMs: VW big restructuring ahead; MBG might also lower guidance range

We see P911 as best clean Q2 performer with 7% OPM incl. ~300bps realignment costs; more cost cutting could trigger an extra Q2 charge. STLA should beat with 2.3% AOI margin, but we expect the share price reaction will depend on (too) high US stock levels. VW's OPM could disappoint at 4.6%, and FY guidance could be cut for a big restructuring charge in H2 (mid-to-high single-digit €bn charge; also weighing materially on DPS). MBG Cars margin in Q2 should be at the low end of the 3-5% corridor; a 100bps cut to the FY26 range wouldn't surprise us (China-related). BMW had a material profit warning; the 2% auto EBIT margin and ~0 FCF we forecast for Q2 shouldn't surprise anymore. We expect RNO to confirm FY guidance (driven by finco while auto margin deteriorates). Volvo Car could show an EBIT loss in Q2.

Suppliers: No warnings expected for now, but bar for H2 is high

We expect most suppliers to reaffirm their guides, but investors will likely remain sceptical about the implied H2 > H1. Valeo and Schaeffler will likely focus on the non-autos pitch, but difficult auto fundamentals will likely cap the upside. Memory and other chip supply risk is also likely to emerge as a key topic as investors begin to focus on 2027 (most relevant for Aumovio and Valeo). Overall, we prefer defensive positioning, focusing on self-help levers and robust balance sheets (Aumovio, CIE). Brembo PT €10.3 (from €8.2) on higher EPS and FCF on Sensify contracts and new JVs.

Tires: Solid pricing, upside risk from potential EU tariffs

We see upside to volumes (replacement demand in Europe and strength in China), favourable channel mix and healthy pricing (further helped by potential EU tariffs, tbd on 7 July). Continental screens most attractively, offering (1) potential upside to guidance in tires and (2) potential value unlock through the planned disposal of ContiTech. Nokian higher EBIT margin and EPS estimates result in new €12.5 PT (from €9.5).

Continental : "ContiTech disposal announced: transforming into a pure play tire maker "

See our full report here

ContiTech sold for an EV of €4bn, in line with market expectations

In a company press release on Saturday, Conti announced it has sold its ContiTech division to PE firm Lone Star for a total EV of €4bn + €250m performance-based components in subsequent years. The plan to dispose of ContiTech has been announced since more than a year and the company has delivered on the initial timing. We think the sale price is in line with investors' expectations and recent press articles. It implies an EV/EBITDA of 7.5x/8.0x (26/27E), using UBS estimates and compares with precedent transaction multiples we have identified in non-tires activities of c11x. The deal is expected to close before YE. We update the list of upcoming (positive) catalysts: Conti Q2 (4 August), Tender share buyback ("SBB") (around Q426), Special div payment (early 2027).

Disclosed terms suggest €17-24/share of value crystallisation

Conti expects a cash inflow from the transaction of €3.1bn, slightly lower than latest UBSe at €3.6bn (see our recent note) due to net liabilities (mostly related leases, transactions costs and tax payment) (we were already adjusting for a pension liability of €400m) but the distributable amount of €2.5bn corresponds to c80% of the proceeds, exactly in line with UBSe. Conti indicates for the use of proceeds "a special dividend or a combination of special dividend and SBB". The slightly lower distributable amount vs UBSe (ie. -€400m) only has a minor impact on the overall value crystallization, which remains significant as per our updated base case for the disclosed terms: +€8/share from tender SBB, +€5/share from special div and +€4-11/share from valuation rating (in line with Michelin's multiples) so €17-24/share. Here are the details:

- We assume (unchanged) Conti will fully maximize its SBB (authorization already granted to buy back up to €1.6bn) with the remaining used via a special dividend (ie. €0.9bn). Should Conti favour only a special dividend, the total amount would correspond to €12-13/share;
- Conti will use €0.6bn for net debt reduction, a bit lower than our previously assumed €0.75bn. We calculate it should lead to a pro-forma net debt/EBITDA of 1.8x post transaction, vs 1.9x at YE25;
- Conti, as a pure play tire maker, will (1) generate an EBIT margin of c13.5% assuming most of the other/consolidation line stays with Conti (ie. Tires EBIT margin alone is closer to 15%, vs Michelin at c11% at comparable perimeter, using PC and Trucks), (2) deliver an EPS of €7/share (post SBB) and (3) pay a recurring dividend yield of >6%. We think the current share price is not reflecting the upside from the just announced deal.

Why we think Conti is mispriced: Buy, PT €90 (DCF-based)

We value Conti (Core, i.e. pure-play tire maker) at €80/share (unchanged vs before but reflecting a larger SBB) based on the following KPIs: EPS in 26E of €6.8, annual FCF average 26-29E of €1.2bn and recurring dividend yield of >6%.

China Auto Sector : "Takeaways from the UBS China EV & AD flagship tour "

See our full report here

Concluding one-week tour with 21 meetings

We met 21 companies and industry professionals during a one-week tour across Beijing, Shanghai, Hangzhou, Guangzhou and Shenzhen. Against a backdrop of a weak domestic car market and poor sector share-price performance, we were not surprised to be reminded of the multiple challenges currently facing the industry, including weak domestic demand, commodity cost pressure and fierce competition, by the various companies we visited. However, companies are still identifying growth drivers, including: 1) new model launches, which we see as largely zero-sum for the industry; 2) overseas sales, which can generate decent profits but carry geopolitical risk; and 3) humanoid robotics and other physical AI applications, where we see potential, albeit with greater uncertainty. After the recent correction in sector share prices, we are turning more constructive on the sector and see buying opportunities in some high-quality names.

Challenges persist but are also evolving

Domestic demand weakened further in Q2, especially for ICE vehicles, and companies like Geely are destocking channel inventories. Competition remains fierce, but under "anti-involution" policies it has shifted from straightforward pricing to intensive new model launches. Commodity cost pressure remains; metal and chemical prices appear to be stabilising or moderating, while memory costs continue to rise. That shifts pressure from mass-market vehicles, which are more exposed to metal costs, to high-end vehicles, which have disproportionately higher memory-chip content. Mass-market cars may face Rmb1-2k of memory cost inflation, while intelligent premium EVs are facing Rmb10-20k, compared with last year. The memory shortage has even weighed on the adoption rate of advanced NOA, even as basic ADAS adoption continues to climb, according to companies such as Horizon Robotics.

Finding growth drivers from exports and robotics

Almost all OEMs are seeking growth drivers in overseas markets. As market accessibility improves, mass-market models are achieving a higher proportion of overseas sales than premium models. Geely continues to ship 100k units/month overseas, more than doubling last year's level and accounting for more than 40% of its total volume. GAC and Leapmotor are also recording triple-digit growth in overseas sales volume. For high-end vehicles from Xiaomi, Li Auto, Avatr and Nio, overseas growth is either a 2027 story or limited to a single-digit percentage of total volume. The overseas opportunity appears more meaningful for two-wheelers, such as CFMoto and Tao Motor, as well as diagnostic equipment maker Autel, while CIMC Vehicles remains constrained by US tariffs. Robotics and physical AI are opportunities not only for UBTech, Pony and WeRide, but also for suppliers, such as Hesai, RoboSense, Seyond and Shuanghuan.

Stock implications:

Although the industry continues to face challenges, we think the recent correction in stocks has priced in much of the downside, and investors should be reminded that Chinese EV makers remain globally competitive in technology and efficiency. In particular, we recently highlighted that BYD has returned to positive YoY growth in total sales volume, domestic market share and we expect YoY earnings growth for Q2, while remaining attractively valued. Among the companies we visited, we have Buy ratings on Nio, Li Auto, CFMoto, Tao Motor, CIMC Vehicles, Hesai, RoboSense, WeRide, Pony, Horizon Robotics and Shuanghuan.

Sector view

The global rise of Chinese OEMs remains the top challenge for European OEMs and suppliers in 2026 (deep-dive session in our 2026 outlook), but the more levelled EV transition, mix opportunities in the US, intensified cost cutting efforts, tech leaps with next-gen product (mainly BMW and MBG) and moderating capex will likely provide some support.

OEMs: We rate Stellantis at Buy on an expected €3bn swing in AOI in North America, driven by new product, a more profitable mix on relaxed emission rules and cost cutting. We remain Neutral on German OEMs, highlighting the China-related downside risk to consensus. We rate Renault at Sell as the higher EV mix, international expansion and rising competition will likely result in underestimated margin contraction. We rate Volvo Car at Sell.

Suppliers: 2026 will likely bring "more of the same" for parts suppliers from a top-down perspective. We like Aumovio (Buy) the most for its cost cutting story with low-hanging fruit left & best-in-class FCF generation; it is also the stock with most upside to consensus. We have a Buy on CIE, a differentiated high-quality supplier with best-in-class profitability.

Tires: Continental is our top pick among tire makers, having a clear path of catalysts for further value creation (Contitech disposal, cash return potential) that should eliminate the discount vs. tire peers. We rate Michelin Neutral on downside risk to consensus due to near-term cyclical challenges.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

The automobile sector has in the past exhibited high levels of volatility in terms of profitability and valuation. Sector earnings and performance are highly sensitive to variations in volume, pricing, raw material costs and currency, all of which have been volatile recently. Long term structural trends continue to improve as a result of higher demand in EM, early signs of sector concentration improving and structurally lower currency exposure but near term cyclical drivers have become more challenging after several years of strong earnings and share price performance. We are also concerned that in a macro recovery rising interest rates would become a material headwind for the industry.

UBS Global Research Disclaimer

This document has been prepared by UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates, including former Credit Suisse AG and its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as "UBS".

Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and are only current as of the date of publication. Different areas, groups, and personnel within UBS may produce and distribute separate research products independently of each other. For example, research publications from UBS CIO are produced by UBS Global Wealth Management. UBS Global Research is produced by UBS Investment Bank. Research methodologies and rating systems of each separate research organization may differ, for example, in terms of investment recommendations, investment horizon, model assumptions, and valuation methods. As a consequence, except for certain economic forecasts (for which UBS CIO and UBS Global Research may collaborate), investment recommendations, ratings, price targets, and valuations provided by each of the separate research organizations may be different, or inconsistent. You should refer to each relevant research product for the details as to their methodologies and rating system. Not all clients may have access to all products from every organization. Each research product is subject to the policies and procedures of the organization that produces it.

This document is provided solely to recipients who are expressly authorized by UBS to receive it. If you are not so authorized you must immediately destroy the document.

UBS Global Research is provided to our clients through UBS Neo, and in certain instances, UBS.com and any other system or distribution method specifically identified in one or more communications distributed through UBS Neo or UBS.com (each a system) as an approved means for distributing UBS Global Research. It may also be made available through third party vendors and distributed by UBS and/or third parties via e-mail or alternative electronic means.

All UBS Global Research is available on UBS Neo. Please contact your UBS sales representative if you wish to discuss your access to UBS Neo. Where UBS Global Research refers to "UBS Evidence Lab Inside" or has made use of data provided by UBS Evidence Lab and you would like to access that data please contact your UBS sales representative. UBS Evidence Lab data is available on UBS Neo. The level and types of services provided by UBS Global Research and UBS Evidence Lab to a client may vary depending upon various factors such as a client's individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communications, a client's risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g., market wide, sector specific, long-term, short-term, etc.), the size and scope of the overall client relationship with UBS Global Research and UBS Evidence Lab and legal and regulatory constraints. UBS HOLT and UBS Pharma Values are offerings of UBS Global Research. HOLT Lens is a corporate performance platform offering that provides an objective accounting-led framework for comparing and valuing companies and is available to clients of UBS Global Research; for further details and pricing please contact your UBS Sales representative. In particular, HOLT has a variety of warranted prices based on the scenario chosen; please mail UBS Securities LLC, 11 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10010, USA, Attention: Investment Research, if you are interested in the warranted price on a particular company, again subject to commercial considerations. UBS Pharma Values is an analytical tool that involves the creation of a number of individual product net present value calculations, based on published forecasts of sales for pharmaceuticals, and is available to clients of UBS Global Research; for further details and pricing please contact your UBS Sales representative. For all other specific disclaimers, please see <https://www.ubs.com/disclosures>.

When you receive UBS Global Research through a system, your access and/or use of such UBS Global Research is subject to this UBS Global Research Disclaimer and to the UBS Neo Platform Use Agreement (the "Neo Terms") together with any other relevant terms of use governing the applicable System.

When you receive UBS Global Research via a third party vendor, e-mail or other electronic means, you agree that use shall be subject to this UBS Global Research Disclaimer, the Neo Terms and where applicable the UBS Investment Bank terms of business (<https://www.ubs.com/global/en/investment-bank/regulatory.html>) and to UBS's Terms of Use/Disclaimer (<https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/disclaimer.html>). In addition, you consent to UBS processing your personal data and using cookies in accordance with our Privacy Statement (<https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/privacy.html>) and cookie notice (<https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legal/privacy/users.html>).

If you receive UBS Global Research, whether through a System or by any other means, you agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research provided via UBS Global Research or otherwise, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates provided to you via UBS Global Research or otherwise, without the prior written consent of UBS. You agree not to use UBS Global Research in any artificial intelligence system, without the prior written consent of UBS.

In certain circumstances you may receive UBS Global Research otherwise than in the capacity of a client of UBS and you understand and agree that under these circumstances (i) the UBS Global Research is provided to you for information purposes only; (ii) for the purposes of receiving it you are not intended to be and will not be treated as a "client" of UBS for any legal or regulatory purpose; (iii) the UBS Global Research must not be relied on or acted upon for any purpose; and (iv) such content is subject to the relevant disclaimers that follow.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. The recipient should carefully read this document in its entirety and not draw inferences or conclusions from the rating alone. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at <https://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp> or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

UBS notes that no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) currently exists, nor is there a market consensus as to what constitutes an "ESG" (Environmental, Social or Governance) or an equivalent-label, or as to what precise attributes are required for the Information (as defined below) to be defined as ESG or equivalently-labelled. Any information, data or other content including from a third party source contained, referred to herein or used for whatsoever purpose by UBS or a third party ("Information"), in relation to any actual or potential ESG objective, issue or consideration is not intended to be relied upon for ESG classification, regulatory regime or industry initiative purposes ("ESG Regimes"). Nothing in these materials is intended to convey, suggest or indicate that UBS considers or represents any product, service, person or body mentioned in these materials as meeting or qualifying for any ESG classification, labelling or similar standards that may exist under the ESG Regimes. UBS has not conducted any assessment of compliance with ESG Regimes. Parties are reminded to make their own assessments for these purposes.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the Information.

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes:

- (i) valuation or accounting purposes;
- (ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or
- (iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. UBS does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. As a result, investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision. For further information on the ways in which UBS Global Research manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS Global Research recommendations, please visit <https://www.ubs.com/disclosures>.

UBS Global Research will initiate, update and cease coverage solely at the discretion of UBS Global Research Management, which will also have sole discretion on the timing and frequency of any published research product. The analysis contained in this document is based on numerous assumptions. All material information in relation to published research reports, such as valuation methodology, risk statements, underlying assumptions (including sensitivity analysis of those assumptions), ratings history etc. as required by the Market Abuse Regulation, can be found on UBS Neo. Different assumptions could result in materially different results.

UBS Global Research may utilise artificial intelligence tools ("AI Tools") in the preparation of this document. Notwithstanding any such use of AI Tools, this document has undergone human review.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by UBS Global Research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms under English law or, if not carried out by UBS in the UK the law of the relevant jurisdiction in which UBS determines it carries out the activity) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Within the past 12 months UBS may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

Please note that all transactions conducted by UBS are consistent with sanctions regulations imposed by Switzerland, the European Union, the United Nations, the United Kingdom and the United States, per UBS' global sanctions policy. UBS opinion as to future investment worthiness assumes no new sanctions are imposed.

US persons are prohibited from purchasing or selling securities of certain companies designated as being associated with the Chinese Military in accordance with the amended US Presidential Executive Order 13959.

Risk information:

You agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates, without the prior written consent of UBS.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is for your information only; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, derivative products and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky. Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the information (as defined below).

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and may differ or be contrary to opinions expressed by other business areas or groups, personnel or other representative of UBS. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes: (i) valuation or accounting purposes; (ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or (iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS (including between Global Wealth Management and UBS Global Research) and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations, please visit <https://www.ubs.com/research-methodology>.

Research will initiate, update and cease coverage solely at the discretion of research management, which will also have sole discretion on the timing and frequency of any published research product. The analysis contained in this document is based on numerous assumptions. Different assumptions could result in materially different results.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS's subsidiaries, branches and affiliates as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms in the UK) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". You may read the document at <https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp> or ask your financial advisor for a copy.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.
