2Q26 Wrap: Leading-edge tightness expected to persist into 2028; mature Foundry pricing gaining momentum

TSMC raised FY26 revenue guidance to 40%+ YoY USD growth (above expectations of mid-high 30% guidance) and increased capex to $60-64bn, with management indicating AI demand visibility now extending into 2029-30. At mature foundries, the pricing narrative has turned more constructive in 2Q, with companies reporting results largely in line to slightly above expectations and guiding continued improvement into 3Q. SMIC guided 3Q well above market expectations on price hikes; UMC confirmed pricing to remain firm; VIS indicated 2027 pricing could be more robust; and PSMC saw strong revenue growth driven by memory ASP surge. Overall, we expect TSMC's leading-edge supply-demand to remain tight through 2028 and mature foundry pricing to continue improving in selective areas (power management, analog, MCU), though we believe longer-term margin recovery at select foundries (UMC, SMIC) may be constrained by accelerating capex-driven depreciation and lackluster CE end demand.

- TSMC leading-edge running at sustained 100%+ UTR; mature foundries approaching 90% on AI adjacent demand: TSMC's management indicated datacenter AI revenue is tracking stronger than prior mid-to-high-50s% CAGR guidance for 2024-29E (JPMe 69%), driven by AI accelerators and agentic AI CPUs. We expect sustained 100%+ UTR at N5/N3 and N2 at least through 2028. At mature foundries, utilization is rising broadly: UMC UTR reached 85% in 2Q (up from 79% in 1Q), and is expected to reach ~90% in 3Q26, supported by AI-adjacent demand (particularly PMICs) though offset by lukewarm consumer; VIS UTR was ~90% in 2Q and expect further improvement in 3Q on continued power management demand strength; PSMC was largely fully run with both tightness in memory and logic; SMIC's management guided UTR to remaining at ~95% in 3Q, driven by AI-peripherals, alongside localization trends. We believe mature foundry demand is only strong for AI-related areas (AI PMICs, interposers, etc.), while the remainder shows some slack.
- Pricing momentum strengthening across both leading-edge and mature nodes: At the leading edge, we expect TSMC to implement another round of price hikes in early 2027 (10+% for N3 and N2 in 2027, with milder increases possible for N5/N7 and CoWoS). At mature foundries, pricing is becoming more favorable, though more so in 8" and selectively in 12". VIS is on a six-month price-hike cadence—the previous round was in February, another round of negotiations is currently underway, and we expect a further increase in early 2027; management indicated that the 2027 price-hike magnitude could exceed that of 2026. UMC guided pricing to remain firm in 3Q, with a more meaningful uptick expected in 2027, though we remain more conservative on it given higher CE exposure. SMIC pointed to a resilient pricing into 2H26 after price hikes in 1H26. PSMC saw the strongest momentum—structural memory-foundry hikes in February and July (~45%), while 8"/12" logic saw 10+% increases in 1H, with potential for further hikes in 2H. Overall, we expect another 5-10%/10%+ price hike in 2H26/2027 in 8" and in applications such as power management, analog, and MCU, while lackluster CE demand keeps 12" from a more broad-based price hike in the coming quarters.
- Gross margins — diverging trajectories across the foundry universe: TSMC reported 2Q26 GM of 67.7%, beating the high end of guidance but below some bullish expectations due to N2 depreciation kicking in earlier, with 3Q guided at 65-67% (JPMe 66.5%). We expect GMs to remain at mid-to-high-60% range (JPMe ~67%/68%/69% in 2026/27/28), supported by pricing increases, mix improvement, and N3 likely to cross corporate-average GM in 2H26. For mature node, in general, we're seeing decent margin improvement thanks to the improving UTR and pricing. VIS guided 3Q GM at a midpoint of 33.5%, and we believe it will improve to 36% by 4Q26 (vs. 28% in 2025). For PSMC, we model ~43%/48% by YE26/27, potentially surpassing its 51% peak by mid-2028. UMC guided 3Q to mid-30s (JPMe ~33%), and we expect it to reach high-30s by end-2026. However, new capex plan should drive depreciation higher in 2027/28. We thus expect margins to stay in the mid- to high 30% range in 2027-28, far below the peak level of the high 40s in 2022. SMIC guided 3Q at 26-28% (JPMe 26%), above prior market expectations driven by robust pricing as AI-peripheral demand continues to drive tight S/D.

- TSMC's 2026 capex guidance surging to $60-64bn; mature foundries expansion mostly in 12" while 8" largely flat: TSMC raised 2026 capex to $60-64bn (JPMe $62bn, up ~50% YoY) with significant upside for 2027-28 (JPMe $81bn/$90bn), driven by N2, N3, and advanced packaging buildout. We expect CoWoS capacity to grow 85%/65% YoY in 2026/27. At mature foundries, UMC raised 2026 guidance to $2bn (from $1.5bn), representing a $5bn investment plan approved for SG and TW fab expansion in the next 2-3 years targeting SiPh and advanced packaging products; PSMC targeting memory upgrades (1X/1P nodes) and 3D AI foundry (Si capacitors, interposers, PWF); and VIS reiterated its first 12" fab in Singapore (VSMC) remains on track for mass production in 1Q27. We expect China foundry capex to stay flat YoY at ~$10bn in 2026, while we forecast total non-TSMC foundry capex at ~$16bn (+10% YoY), with ex-TSMC non-Chinese foundry capex up 32% YoY. We believe the main expansions are in leading-edge and 12" mature nodes, while 8" capacity likely stays flattish for the foreseeable future.
- Stock View: We believe AI and AI-peripheral demand could be a more sustainable story, while we remain conservative on names with higher CE exposure. We thus prefer TSMC, VIS, and PSMC, while staying cautious on UMC and SMIC. At TSMC, we see increased confidence in AI demand, with visibility extending into 2029/30, and expect GMs to stay in the high-60s in 2027, supported by price increases, better operating efficiency, and continued high utilization. For VIS, we believe it is well positioned for AI power-management demand, supporting high UTR and double-digit annual ASP growth. For PSMC, we expect sustained revenue and margin expansion beyond near-term pricing into 2027-28, with continued mix improvement (higher memory, increasing PMIC, less DDIC/sensor) following the Tongluo site sale. For UMC, we remain Neutral given its higher exposure to CE applications and still-limited AI exposure (3% of revenue in 2026). Lastly, we also maintain Neutral on SMIC as we believe favorable pricing from AI-adjacent demand is sustainable, but further margin upside could be capped by a depreciation burden outpacing revenue in 2026/27.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period. J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe). NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
