Asia Power Equipment

Key Learnings from Global Electrical Companies' 2Q Results; Indian Names Better Positioned for Near Term

Major global electrical equipment companies have retreated by more than 20% from their peaks (Figure 5). We believe this reflects concerns about overcapacity in power equipment and a potential peak in the power capex cycle, compounded by volatility in tech-related names. In this note, we summarize the latest quarterly results from global electrical equipment companies and highlight four key takeaways: 1) Profits and orders are powering ahead, with more than 75% of the major players raising revenue and/or profit guidance (Table 1), and almost all providing positive commentary on new orders and backlog trends; 2) Only a handful of companies (e.g., GE Vernova, LS Electric) have announced capacity expansion in gas turbines and low-voltage electricals, while most others have maintained existing capacity plans. Although new capacity is expected to ramp up gradually from 2027-30E, management teams noted that a meaningful portion of that incremental capacity is already covered by orders, implying tight supply/demand dynamics could persist through the decade, on our estimates; 3) Earnings visibility continues to improve, with the order backlog-to-revenue (TTM) ratio rising to above 3x (Figure 6), and visibility extending even further for gas-turbine-focused names; and 4) Orders in Europe are gathering steam for Asian names, with numerous European Capital Goods names beating on results.

Our strategy team and Capital Goods analysts forecast a longer lasting, policy-supported capex cycle in energy systems and grids, which should bode well for global names with rising EU exposure. Overall, these results reinforce our positive sector view: on robust demand, disciplined capacity expansion, and rising backlogs. From a trading perspective, we believe Indian power equipment companies could outperform over the next three months, supported by their lower sensitivity to recent tech volatility, the strongest regional revenue growth visibility and print in the latest quarter, and the emerging theme of export pick-up and domestic data-center expansion. In addition, reports of potential US data-center delays ahead of the midterm elections should have a relatively lower impact on Indian names, as their export geographies are more diversified. Our regional OW names are included in Table 2.

- What's new from the latest quarterly results? Key trends remain robust (pricing, backlog, new orders, etc.), but a few developments are worth highlighting: 1) While backlogs remain strong, revenue conversion proved operationally complex for some names (e.g., Vertiv (VRT US, NC) in 2Q) due to temporary supply chain congestion (note). This suggests revenue recognition for T&D names can be lumpy if data center construction timelines slip; 2) While price increases are still in place, recent trends for Korean electrical players suggest pricing is flattening (vs ~20% hikes p.a. in 2023/24). As a result, further margin expansion is likely to depend more on a favorable geographic mix (towards the US/EU) and product mix (towards higher-voltage products) than on incremental price hikes; 3) In US T&D equipment, demand from CSPs has emerged as a new growth driver alongside grid/utilities, as evidenced by GEV's 1H electrification orders from data centers (US$5bn, ~2x FY25 levels) and HD Electric's entry into the AIDC market. Notably, HDE/Hyosung Heavy still derive <10% of orders directly from CSPs, implying meaningful upside potential for new orders; and 4) Order momentum in the EU is gathering steam with some companies guiding meaningful price hikes for T&D equipment, which could be a function of the policy-supported capex cycle in energy systems and grids, as proposed by our strategy team (note).

- When will the power capex cycle peak? We believe the cycle still has a long way to run. US T&D capex has grown at a mid-teens pace over the past few years and, based on our expert call with a former Department of Energy advisor (note), could continue to expand at a double-digit rate through the end of the decade; the cycle may persist at least through 2040E (Figure 4) given the underinvestment of prior years (Figure 3). In addition, CSP capex continues to grow healthily, and our US tech analysts forecast >70/15% growth in 2027-28E, which should support behind-the-meter power generation for years. While demand remains robust across both regulated (grid/utilities) and private (CSP) channels, capacity expansion remains restrained, with only a handful of major players announcing additional capacity plans in their latest results, such as GE Vernova and LS Electric. As a result, we see limited risk of overcapacity over the rest of the decade. Our Global Capital Goods analyst forecasts global gas turbine capacity trending towards ~95GW beyond 2030E, versus potential annual demand of 110-120GW.
- India: Exports and data center demand improving, grid pick-up to likely follow? Common themes across India Power Equipment prints were: 1) strong export momentum, with GVTD's export OI at ~Rs5.2bn (higher than Rs3bn/Q run-rate last year), ENRIN's export revenues in 9MFY26 up 75% yoy (including a LPT delivery to US), and POWERIND's large HVDC export order win, 2) Data Center demand pick-up, with POWERIND announcing multiple DC orders, ENRIN delivering sub-station equipment for DCs, and GVTD management highlighting a pipeline of DC opportunities on HV designs, and 3) still relatively muted domestic transmission-equipment ordering, but expectations of a pick-up as transmission project approvals are improving. India's power equipment sector seems to be one of the few major global markets where worries are on over-supply, with major players adding substantial capacity over the next two years, which could be alleviated if the emerging cohorts of exports, DC, grid-stability, and BESS continue to inflect.
- India: GVTD and POWERIND top picks, ENRIN's business mix keeps us Neutral: GVTD's near-term margin cap due to a lower export backlog (exports give ~600bps higher margin than domestic) and delays in large export orders (see here) have driven recent underperformance vs POWERIND, which we believe provides an opportunity to buy from a long-term perspective, as large export orders are still likely to materialize, and domestic DC orders are yet to show up meaningfully. POWERIND remains the best-in-class executor (see here) and HVDC leader and has been faster in offering global solutions in DC (grid-to-rack) and BESS. ENRIN is also seeing an inflection in exports (see here), and a pick-up in 'grid stability' ordering – a strong suit for ENRIN – could pose upside risks, but with 'generation' (45% of revenues) still a sizeable portion of the business, and valuations similar to GVTD, we continue to prefer the latter.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period. J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
